The best characteristics of trainer (lecturer)

For this topic, I want to talk about my own experience during my studying life until now. Before anything in life, I believe respect comes first.

Having good relationship with the students is also important, he or she must have the knowledge so they can teach well, they must know their students well and understand them, they must not have a very serious personality instead they have to be funny but not always balance is the right word for this.

They must not be careless they have to be caring and kind and when it needs, they must be serious, so no one takes advantage from their personality.

Patient and being motivating is very helpful.

Engaging students in the class is very important so the trainee will build their personality with the self-confidence and in our community that is a very needy.

I now remember three of my teachers very well and I am still in contact with them.

And why is that?

One of them for me was not only a teacher in the class but was a lifetime teacher I learned a lot from him I can say he changed my life. He was understanding and kind did not judge and listened well advice and that is it.

The other two respected and very smart

And the rest of them are forgotten maybe I only remember their names.

The best characteristics of trainee (student)

For this topic, I do have experience and I do not, I must put myself into the place of lecturer (teacher) so that I can understand what I shall expect from a student.

For this one too I believe respect is the first thing to follow.

For the students being disciplined is important and taking responsibility.

Being dedicated to studying is main point of success.

They must participate and ask relevant questions.

I expect from them self-confidence.

Working hard

A good listener

Having good behavior is the most important thing.

Coming to my own experience I think a student must be thirsty for knowledge and his prior goal must not be getting high marks its joyful but that is not all a student's prior goal must be learning, making good communication and experience.

I disagree with being a nerd that is not good.

Enjoyment while studying is a good method to follow.
